

Polyurethane Process Industries

we help food equipment manufacturers improve the environment

We can help you convert to bio-based materials and hydrocarbon or fourth generation blowing agents that offer zero Ozone Depleting Potential and zero to low Global Warming Potential.

save energy

We can help you produce the most energy-efficient products, and we consider energy efficiency in every system we design.

increase profits

Manufacturers of flexible-faced, insulated panels reported a 10% reduction in chemical costs and significant energy savings after upgrading to our latest production technology. Learn how we can help you, too.

bulk
chemical storage

We have helped many domestic and commercial refrigeration manufacturers switch from froth to high-pressure foam processing or modify equipment for use with more environmentally friendly materials. We can supply complete manufacturing plants—including everything you need for bulk storage of polyol, isocyanate, and pentane through all relevant chemical transfer, metering, mixing, ventilation, molding, stacking, packing, and control systems. We also offer retrofit kits that convert processing equipment for use with newer hydrocarbon and non-flammable alternate blowing agents.
